

Reizel Larrea-Alvarez is the Founder of SPEAK Q Network and a former investigative producer for CBS News in Miami.

Reizel Larrea-Alvarez is a recipient of 2 Emmy's and 5 Emmy nominations. She is responsible for producing the Emmy Award winning investigative story "Dangerous Brews". This story was submitted by 17 Attorneys General around the country to the Alcohol Tobacco Tax and Trade Bureau to highlight the dangerous effects of alcohol energy drinks. As a result of her story, within 4 months, The Miller Brewing Company and Anheuser-Busch were ordered to remove the dangerous drinks off the market.

Reizel has been recognized by The South Florida Society of Journalism and is a recipient of the Green Eye Shade Award for her investigative journalism skills. In 2006 she was the recipient of The MADD Media Awards "Journalism of Excellence" for her Dangerous Brew series. It was the first time the award was given to a local news station.

She is an active Board Member of the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences-Suncoast Chapter. She is also a Chairman's Circle and Board of Trustee member of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce. She holds a double major in Accounting and Finance from the University of Miami and worked for Deloitte as an auditor right out of college before she decided to change careers.

For the last 3 years, Reizel has been a student of personal development and has seen first hand how women transform when they work on their personal skills, business skills and technology skills.
